

"4-H" continued from page 4

Camp, competed in the three county shows, and several of their members went on to compete at region where five out of the eight spots went to their club. They placed 3rd in their first year. They promoted 4-H by riding in several parades including; the Bear River City 24th of July Parade, the Ogden Pioneer Day Horse Parade, Garland's Wheat and Beet Parade, Brigham City's Peach Days Parade, Deweyville's 4th of July Parade and Honeyville's 4th of July Parade.

Shane Bingham, Angela Harper, and Hindi Wilkinson are the leaders of the Honeyville Rough Riders Horse Club. All three are first year leaders. Each was involved in 4-H as a child. Shane was involved until his senior year in high school; Angela participated in a 4-H Horse club; and Hindi got started when a neighbor invited her to be a part of their 4-H cooking club. She continued to be involved after that and went to the National 4-H center in Maryland as a youth ambassador.

Shane wanted to be a leader because of his son. His son has been in 4-H for two years and he wanted to get him involved with the horse program, but there wasn't a club in Honeyville. He believes the 4-H program is great outlet for kids to learn great life skills. The most rewarding part of being a leader is watching kids learn new skills and improving the ones they already have.

Angela became a leader for her daughter. She had participated in the sheep, poultry and various events in previous years and had a desire to start riding with her horse, but there were not a lot of options in the horse program, so she decided to sign up. The most rewarding part for Angela is seeing the kids that have never ridden, come to club week after week to learn and have fun. They always have big smiles and are excited to be a part of this organization.

"It is great experience for me to be a part of, I really enjoy each and every aspect of being a leader," Angela said.

Hindi became a leader because of her kids. She wanted her kids to experience some of the fun things she got to do and learn skills, especially with horses. She also chose to become a leader because of the need in the county. There were no community horse clubs available in her area open to new members and there were many new members interested in the program. For Hindi the most rewarding part of being a leader is watching the confidence the kids have gained in only a few short months, and the friendships formed between the kids and how it's opened their minds to meeting new people.

The club has hosted what they hope to be their annual Play-Day Fundraiser in October where they played traditional speed event games as well as an egg race and ride a buck. They decorated pumpkins for the Deweyville town pumpkin walk and went on a trail ride to Antelope Island. They have already set more goals for the coming year.
