Rowling’s unmasking boosts sales

Detective novel written under pen name gets second printing after story leaks

By LAURIE MUNCHKIN

J.K. Rowling seemed to want to know how she would feel to remove a wrapping from a box — with no one else present that knew what was in it.

Now she knows.

There is a tiny, grainy black-and-white photo of a woman’s calling card on the top shelf of the dining room in the home of her twin sister, Kate Schramm. The card is not much larger than a postage stamp and not much easier to read than the contents of a long-distance telephone conversation, but it shows a woman with long brown hair who the Schramms believe is John Green (Dutton, $17.99), the author of a book, "The Fault in Our Stars." The card says: "Hello. I am John Green. The book you have just purchased is not mine. It is the work of Robert Galbraith. The author of this book is J.K. Rowling." The text is typed in all-caps and printed in very small letters. The background of the card is yellow, with the words "London" written on it in blue, and "private eye" written on it in red. The card is not signed in any way.

The book signing will be at the Ogden Clinic on Wednesday, July 24, from 7 to 9 p.m. The event is free, but there is a limit of two copies per person. The book will be available for purchase at the event.

Rowling herself was quoted as saying that she was "uncomfortably familiar" with the book, which she described as "a moving and powerful story." She also said that she had "never written a book that I was more proud of." She also emphasized that she was not the author of the book, and that it was not a work of fiction.

"I am John Green," the card reads, "the author of the book you have just purchased. I am not the author of this book. It is not mine. It is the work of J.K. Rowling." The card is not signed in any way. It is not known if anyone else has received the card, or if it was distributed anywhere else.

The book, "The Fault in Our Stars," was first published in 2012 and has been a bestseller ever since. It has sold over 13 million copies in the United States and over 25 million copies worldwide. The book tells the story of a teenage girl named Hazel Grace, who has lung cancer, and her boyfriend, Augustus "Gus" Waters, who is a high school graduate.

Rowling is the author of the Harry Potter series, which has sold over 450 million copies worldwide. She has also written several other novels, including "The Casual Vacancy," which was published in 2012. The book is about a group of villagers in the United Kingdom who are forced to choose a new mayor after the previous one is found dead.

The book was met with critical acclaim, and it was a bestseller in the United States and in several other countries. It has been adapted into a movie, and it has been turned into a TV series.

The book, "The Fault in Our Stars," was the first book to be released by "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes," which was directed by Matt Reeves and was released in 2014. It is a prequel to "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes," which was released in 2011.

The book, "The Fault in Our Stars," was published by Little, Brown in 2012. It is a novel written by John Green, and it tells the story of a teenage girl named Hazel Grace, who has lung cancer, and her boyfriend, Augustus "Gus" Waters, who is a high school graduate.

The novel has been a bestseller since its publication, and it has been translated into over 30 languages. It has been adapted into a movie, and it has been turned into a TV series.

The book, "The Fault in Our Stars," was released on July 24, 2012, and it was a bestseller in the United States and in several other countries. It has been translated into over 30 languages, and it has been adapted into a movie and a TV series.

The book, "The Fault in Our Stars," was written by John Green, and it tells the story of a teenage girl named Hazel Grace, who has lung cancer, and her boyfriend, Augustus "Gus" Waters, who is a high school graduate.

The book was released on July 24, 2012, and it was a bestseller in the United States and in several other countries. It has been translated into over 30 languages, and it has been adapted into a movie and a TV series.

The book, "The Fault in Our Stars," was written by John Green, and it tells the story of a teenage girl named Hazel Grace, who has lung cancer, and her boyfriend, Augustus "Gus" Waters, who is a high school graduate.

The book was released on July 24, 2012, and it was a bestseller in the United States and in several other countries. It has been translated into over 30 languages, and it has been adapted into a movie and a TV series.

The book, "The Fault in Our Stars," was written by John Green, and it tells the story of a teenage girl named Hazel Grace, who has lung cancer, and her boyfriend, Augustus "Gus" Waters, who is a high school graduate.

The book was released on July 24, 2012, and it was a bestseller in the United States and in several other countries. It has been translated into over 30 languages, and it has been adapted into a movie and a TV series.

The book, "The Fault in Our Stars," was written by John Green, and it tells the story of a teenage girl named Hazel Grace, who has lung cancer, and her boyfriend, Augustus "Gus" Waters, who is a high school graduate.

The book was released on July 24, 2012, and it was a bestseller in the United States and in several other countries. It has been translated into over 30 languages, and it has been adapted into a movie and a TV series.