District getting ready for ’10-’11 school year

BY TIFFANY DE MARES
news@stgeorge.com

ST. GEORGE — The Washington County School District is filled with excitement these days, with school systems across Utah gearing up for the upcoming school year. Most rows, superintendent Dr. Tom חייב pesquisa obrigada de longo prazo.

The exercise will run from approximately 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. During the event, the Pine View High School will be locked at times and police officers will be stationed at the entrance.

The exercise is designed to prepare school personnel and students to effectively respond in the event of a violent act on campus. Educators will work to increase the prevalence of school personnel and local and area law enforcement and fire departments. The school board and DXATC will also take part in the exercise. Community strategies, strategically stacked at various points throughout the campus, will be identified with an orange vest. Area residents and motor-ists should not be alarmed by increased traffic from the exercise. Students and parents are being asked to plan an alternative mode of transportation to school for the day.

The People's group is sponsored by the Utah Department of Public Safety, the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and the Utah Emergency Management Board. The People's group supports pro-grams that focus on the development of effective emergency protocol (deadline Feb. 1) process.

For the Spectrum

As The Spectrum continues to inform our community of the continuing effort of The People's group, we are excited to report that the group continues to grow and has gained support from many businesses and organizations in the community. The group is currently working on the creation of a public awareness campaign to promote the need for emergency preparedness. The campaign will include a series of educational materials, including a website and social media campaigns, that will be distributed to the community. The campaign will also include a series of public events, including workshops and seminars, to raise awareness of the importance of emergency preparedness.

For The Spectrum

The Utah Humanities Commission and the Utah Historical Society have announced the continuation of an ini-tiative to establish a new grant program. The program will be funded by a special appro-priation to the UHS from the Utah State Legislature. The grant program will be known as the People's program and will provide funding to support projects that focus on the development of effective emergency protocol. The People's program is designed to encourage community involvement and to assist communities in developing effective emergency plans. The program will be administered by the Utah Humanities Commission and will be open to all communities in Utah. To apply for funding, communities must submit a proposal that outlines the proposed project and how it will benefit the community. The proposals will be reviewed by a panel of experts who will determine the final award amounts. The grants will be awarded on a competitive basis and will be distributed throughout the state. The People's program will be open to all communities in Utah and will be funded through a special appropriation to the UHS. For more information on the People's program or to apply, visit the website at utahhumanities.org or contact the People's program office at (801) 538-6210.