In a collaborative effort to address local problem behaviors such as drug substace abuse, violence, and teen pregnancy, the Moab Community Action Coalition (www.moacinc.org), Four Corners Community Behavioral Health and Moab city are partnering to implement the Communities that Care Prevention model.

Amendment—Continued from page A1

a 30 feet are allowed in subdivisions.

Another request that would have changed the requirement for fixed control plans on properties with more than 7,000 square feet of impervious area to 5,000 square feet was rejected by the council after Wright explained that 7,000 square feet is just 16 percent of a square block and just enough to "greatly affect storm water runoff.

Improvements are defined as roadways, driveways, sidewalk, patios, and other surfaces that were immediately run off of Wright said.

Council member Bob Greenberg said he could not vote for the new standards because the taxpayers must cover the cost of operating a significant number of new streetlights. He asked for evidence that there have been enough accidents in the county to justify the cost.

It was decided to vote for the new standards after council member Ken Hallany, a retired Utah Highway Patrol trooper, and additional lighting can prevent our accidents. "Having cleaned up the after- math of collisions at intersections, you light a small price to pay for the safety," Ballantyne said.

Continued from page A1

Another request that would have changed the requirement for fixed control plans on properties with more than 7,000 square feet of impervious area to 5,000 square feet was rejected by the council after Wright explained that 7,000 square feet is just 16 percent of a square block and just enough to "greatly affect storm water runoff.

Improvements are defined as roadways, driveways, sidewalk, patios, and other surfaces that were immediately run off of Wright said.

Council member Bob Greenberg said he could not vote for the new standards because the taxpayers must cover the cost of operating a significant number of new streetlights. He asked for evidence that there have been enough accidents in the county to justify the cost.

It was decided to vote for the new standards after council member Ken Hallany, a retired Utah Highway Patrol trooper, and additional lighting can prevent our accidents. "Having cleaned up the after- math of collisions at intersections, you light a small price to pay for the safety," Ballantyne said.